SUSTAINING ECONOMIC VITALITY AND THE NATURAL ENVIRONMENT

The Ball Janik LLP Land Use practice has assisted clients with some of the most important land use projects in Oregon, sustaining both the region's economic vitality and natural environment. We represent clients in a wide variety of local, state, and federal matters in all phases of urban, suburban and rural project development. Our broad experience encompasses entitlements for downtown office buildings, residential planned unit developments, ski areas, destination resorts, industrial parks, retail centers, university campuses, medical and research campuses, and energy facilities. Our attorneys regularly appear in local land use hearings, at Oregon's Land Use Board of Appeals, in the appellate courts and the Oregon Supreme Court. We work closely with the firm's other practice groups to address land use, environmental, and natural resource issues as they arise for clients in real estate and corporate transactions and litigation, and bankruptcy matters.
